

Fancy Floors

New floor polishing technology has been introduced to the South African market that gives options to contractors to make perfect floors.

Pan Mixers has brought in a range of floor finishing machines that use diamond coated grinding and polishing pads to make concrete or other hard floors shine like expensive stone floors. The floors are low maintenance because the diamond grinding and polishing pads create a smooth finish that dirt cannot stick to.

Contractors can lay a concrete floor for a house, shop, clinic or government building and polish it as smooth as decorative granite or marble. Depending on the aggregate used, the floor can be finished to show the colour of the stones used and make the floor look like a Hollywood show house, at a fraction of the cost of stone.

The HTC machines are imported from Sweden and can be used to create the same look on old concrete floors in retail areas like car workshops, hospitals or any area where a clean shiny floor is required.

At the recent Pan Mixers Fair a demonstration showed how a floor can be completely ground and polished while workers stay at their work stations. This makes it ideal for contractors to redo floors for businesses without the business having to close down while they are busy.

The machines also enable contractors to offer something different to architects looking for fancy finishes, or even specify the diamond polished floors in affordable housing complexes.

HTC also has a range of floor cleaning and polishing machines that can be used to clean and polish any floor surfaces without detergents, soap or wax.
